211 - the number you need to know for Information During Emergencies!

211 Ontario is a telephone service that assists residents looking for information about local social and community services, 24 hours a day, seven days a week. During major emergencies such as the Goderich Tornado, 211 assisted that community by answering thousands of calls from residents looking for information about emergency shelter locations, making donations and volunteering. The County of Lambton and local municipalities have developed a partnership with 211 Ontario, and over the next week, will be providing information to the public about how 211 can provide official information during major emergencies.

For more information, please visit the 211 page of the County's website:

2013 NAAAW Highlights

2013 NAAAW was a huge success as usual. Community members participated in numerous events that took place within the community. There several information sessions and displays on hand, as well as a dinner, awards presentation, and door prizes.

This year the all new Peggy Bird Award was presented to Emily Williams for Youth Living a Good Life and Bonnie Plain was the 12th recipient of the Bertha Adams Award for Living a Good Life.

Matt Williams raised the NAAAW Banner at the community centre while Jr. Miss Aamjiwnaang, Siddra Yellowman, along with Zander and Santana pose with Sober Bear.

Kelly Kiyoshk was on hand to conduct the Sunrise Ceremony and sing an honour song during the raising of the NAAAW flag.

Scared Straight, a youth crime, drug, and suicide awareness workshop was one of the main highlights of NAAAW. James Lathlin from Opaskawak Cree Nation, The Pas, Manitoba presented his phenomenal workshop on November 22nd at Maawn Doosh Gumig.

Scared Straight has Nation wide notoriety, including the following:

- Featured on MTV "Livewire"
- Adam Beach, Snoop Dog, and 2Pac Shakur Foundation endorses "Scared Straight"
- Established Code of Ethics for gangs
- Manitoba Public Insurance Spokesperson-Auto Theft
- OPP, RCMP, CFS, Youth Workers, and Front Line Workers sponsorship
- Collaborated with Dakota House

James has experienced the hard life. His mother wanted to try build a better life for her family by going to school and moved her family to the city. This is where James met up with his cousin who was involved in the gang life. James had his first bout with the law when he went along for a ride in an (unknowingly at the time) stolen car. They ended up in a high speed chase which left him in the hospital and his cousin paralyzed to this day.

From there James' life went in a downward spiral of negative events that landed in and out of jail and near-death experiences. It was during a stretch of time incarcerated that James decided to change his life around to help youth that are heading in the wrong direction in their lives.

CHIEFS OF ONTARIO SUPPORT LAND-MARK CANADIAN 60s SCOOP LAWSUIT AGAINST THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT CALLING IT GENOCIDE

Thunder Bay, ON (December 3, 2013) —Ontario Regional Chief Stan Beardy is calling the lawsuit against the federal government an opportunity for justice and healing for the thousands of Indigenous children who were apprehended by the government and placed with non-Indigenous families by child welfare services over three decades.

“This class action lawsuit being led by a Chief Marcia Brown Martel, a survivor of the 60s Scoop, is an example of the cultural genocide that took place in Canada under the cover of child protection,” said Ontario Regional Chief Stan Beardy.

With the hearing scheduled for Wednesday December 4, 2013, Chief Marcia Brown Martel of Beaverhouse First Nation reminds Ontario Chiefs to support her ongoing efforts to seek justice for the thousands of men and women that were involved in the infamous 60s Scoop.

“It is imperative for our people, leaders and supporters to attend the upcoming court hearing,” said Chief Brown Martel. “We need to release Canada’s hold on our children. Canada needs to be held accountable for the violations to our 60’s Scoop Children.”

She hopes the court room will be full with First Nations people and other supporters. The 60s Scoop refers to another dark period time period in Canadian history when thousands of First Nation children were apprehended by the province through the Children’s Aid Societies. The children were forcibly removed from their families and communities and were subsequently placed in non-Indigenous homes throughout Canada and internationally.

Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians Deputy Grand Chief Denise Stonefish, Chair of the Chiefs Committee on Social for the Chiefs of Ontario said, “The impact of the 60s Scoop is no different than the impacts of the residential schools. Placing our children in non-Indigenous environments and households was a way for the government to continue with its assimilation policy.”

“First Nations leadership has maintained that they have never given up their jurisdiction over their own children. This lawsuit should include charging the government and their agents with kidnapping,” Deputy Grand Chief Stonefish said.

To ensure that this doesn’t ever occur again, a lawsuit was launched against the federal government for not protecting First Nations children. One of those children was Chief Marcia Brown Martel who first initiated this lawsuit.

In 2009, a lawsuit was filed in Ontario Provincial Court to seek certification for a class action suit against the federal government for the failure to protect the cultural identity rights of Indigenous children. Before the ink was dry, lawyers for the Attorney General of Canada submitted an appeal. The appeal was granted, not based upon the merits of the case, but rather, on a technicality.

The plaintiff re-filed the request for a certificate for a class action. In July 2013, the Ontario Supreme Court granted the certification to move forward with the class action suit. Once again, the federal government has appealed. While the government acknowledges the loss of family, language, culture, values and traditions for the individuals, they do not believe that these actions are subject to any punitive actions.

The appeal hearing was scheduled for 10 am on Wednesday, December 4, 2013 at Osgoode Hall.

The Chiefs of Ontario is a political forum and a secretariat for collective decision making, action, and advocacy for the 133 First Nation communities located within the boundaries of the province of Ontario, Canada.
