As a family we would like to send another Big Thanks out to the Dreamcatcher Fund for their continued support with Lance Harding and Tyler Stonefish's on-going involvement in the Sport of Hockey and Football.

Hockey is Lance's ambition, his dream, and his all-time favourite hobby. Lance's determination to become a well-rounded hockey player is definitely taking place at a young age. We are so grateful for the support made accessible to Lance which allows him the opportunity to play with a competitive London Hockey Team, attend the 3 Nolan's Camp, and in the past other various camps and support with his love for the game of hockey.

Tyler Stonefish is also extremely grateful of the continued contributions towards his passion for the game of football. He will be playing the 2013 Summer Year with the Forest City Thunderbirds – and will have an opportunity to travel by coach bus to compete with this year's league from Sudbury to Windsor Areas. Tyler appreciates the game, loves the challenge, and continues to excel with his hard-work and determination. His goal is to become a player that has potential to attend an academic setting of Higher Learning with an ability to partake in their football program.

Again these boy's dreams, hard-work, commitment to the sport of choice continues to be supported with contributions made by the Dreamcatcher's Fund. For this we are forever thankful.

Miigwetch ~ Tyler Stonefish and Lance Harding.

Strawberry Tart with Flaky Pastry

Active:

40 min.

Total Time:

4 hrs. 45 min.

Servings:

Makes one 12-inch tart

Pastry

- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/4 cups ice water
- 3 1/2 cups chilled all-purpose flour, (more for dusting)
- 1 pound cold unsalted butter, cut into 1/2-inch pieces

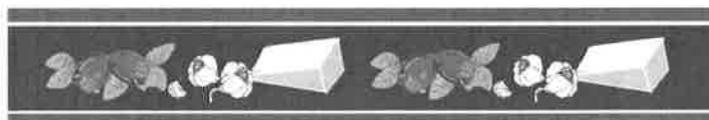

Tart

- 1 cup heavy cream
 - 3 tablespoons granulated sugar
 - 1 tablespoon Grand Marnier
 - 1 pound strawberries, thinly sliced
 - Confectioners' sugar, for dusting
1. ASSEMBLE THE TART Dissolve salt in the ice water. Combine 3 1/2 cups of flour and butter and pulse until the butter is the size of peas and evenly distributed in the flour. Make indentations in the flour mixture and drizzle with water. Pulse just until the flour is moistened. Scrape mixture out onto a lightly floured work surface and quickly press and squeeze just until a shaggy, coarse dough forms. Flatten the dough into a disk, wrap in plastic and refrigerate for 30 minutes.
 2. On a floured work surface, dust the top of the pastry with flour. Roll out to an 8-by-15-inch rectangle. Fold the rectangle into thirds like a letter, brushing off any excess flour. Roll it out to a rectangle and fold it again, dusting with more flour as necessary. Cover and refrigerate for 30 minutes. Roll and fold 2 more times, refrigerating the pastry for 30 minutes in between. Refrigerate for 1 hour.
 3. Preheat the oven to 425°. Cut out a 10-inch round of parchment paper. Line a large rimmed baking sheet with parchment. Divide the pastry in half; freeze half for another use. On a floured work surface, roll out the pastry 1/4 inch thick. Using a sharp knife and a 12-inch plate as a template, cut out a 12-inch round. Brush off any excess flour and transfer the pastry to the prepared baking sheet. Top with the parchment round and a 10-inch cake pan; fill the pan with pie weights or dried beans.
 4. Bake the pastry in the middle of the oven for 10 minutes. Reduce the oven temperature to 375° and bake for about 35 minutes, until starting to brown around the edge. Remove the cake pan and parchment round and cover the edge of the pastry with foil. Bake the pastry in the upper third of the oven for about 15 minutes longer, until the center of the round is lightly browned and crisp. Transfer the pastry to a rack to cool.

5. In a large bowl, whip the cream to soft peaks. Add the granulated sugar and Grand Marnier and whip the cream until firm. Spread the whipped cream over the pastry and arrange the sliced strawberries on top. Dust the tart with confectioners' sugar, cut into wedges and serve.

NOTE: Make Ahead Pastry can be prepared through Step 2 and refrigerated for up to 2 days or frozen for up to 1 month.

Linguine with Tomatoes, Baby Zucchini & Herbs

Active:

15 min.

Total Time:

25 min.

Servings:

4 people

- 1 pound tomatoes, cored and finely chopped
 - 1 tablespoon chopped basil
 - 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
 - 2 garlic cloves, minced
 - 2 teaspoons kosher salt
 - 1 small red chile, seeded and minced
 - 1/3 cup extra-virgin olive oil
 - 12 ounces linguine
 - 3 baby zucchini, thinly sliced
 - 1/4 cup freshly grated Parmigiano-Reggiano cheese, plus more for serving
1. In a large bowl, toss tomatoes, basil, parsley, garlic, salt, chile and olive oil.
 2. In a large pot of boiling salted water, cook the linguine until al dente; drain well. Add the linguine to the bowl along with the sliced zucchini and toss. Add the 1/4 cup of grated cheese, toss again and serve in bowls, passing more cheese at the table.

Tips for Parents - Brain Development

Did you know?

#	Age & Stage	Theme	Title
2	Preconception	Future fathers' health	Did you know that the brain of a future baby can be affected by the father's health, even before conception?

It is best to make changes when you are thinking about conceiving a baby.

If you are planning a pregnancy, it is best to:

- Stop using recreational drugs such as marijuana and cocaine. Drugs may increase the number of abnormal sperm. The effect of recreational drugs may not be identified immediately at birth. The effects may show up at a later date in the form of learning disabilities. It is safer to stop using recreational drugs before conceiving.
- Review your medication with your health care provider. Prescription and over-the-counter drugs can affect the quality and quantity of sperm. Herbal medicines and body-building supplements are drugs too! You may need to change the dosage, stop using the drug, or change to a different drug before planning a pregnancy.
- Take a look at the toxic substances that may be in your home, workplace and where you spend leisure time. It takes about three months for sperm to fully develop. Sperm quality may be affected by many factors during that time: heat, chemicals, recreational and prescription drugs, infections, etc. Sperm quality also decreases gradually as men age.
- If you are exposed to potentially harmful substances at work, talk with your employer about alternative arrangements. Be aware that toxic substances, such as chemicals in dust, can travel home with you on your clothing, hair and skin. This may not be safe for your partner and future baby.
- Stop drinking alcohol and smoking before planning a pregnancy. Heavy alcohol use may affect sperm shape and function. Heavy drinking can also affect your ability to be a supportive father and partner. Second-hand smoke can impact the fetus, so consider stopping smoking before the baby is conceived. If you have concerns, contact your health care provider or local addiction services.
- Ensure your immunizations are up to date. Get immunized for chicken pox and rubella (German measles) if you have not had those infections.
- Get screened for sexually transmitted infections. These can affect the health of the baby.
- Find out about your own health and your family's health history. High blood pressure, arthritis, depression, cancer, mumps, diabetes, and Hepatitis B can affect your chances of having a healthy baby. Contact your health care provider or a genetics clinic if there are any family medical conditions you are concerned about such as severe allergies, heart malformations or mental health concerns.
- Make sure you are getting all the nutrients your body needs. A healthy diet builds healthy sperm.
- Take time to be active every day. The Canadian Physical Activity Guidelines recommend that adults get at least 2.5 hours of moderate to vigorous physical activity per week. Support your partner's physical activity needs.
- To be an involved father, find out about pregnancy, labour, birth and child development issues. Did you know that mothers who have a supportive, involved partner breastfeed more successfully?

Now is a great time to make positive changes in your habits for both you and your partner. This will give you good health before you conceive, and create healthy habits for your future growing family.

The Five Seasons of Life

Spring

The newness of life – the freshness of spring,
A baby's first smile, the song a bird sings
The first season of life, gentle and pure,
An innocence begun – Spring demure.

Summer

Adventures await around each bend,
Games to play – exploring with friends,
The happy times seem endless now,
Though the summer days go by somehow.

Autumn

A time of golden hues and scents,
The future unwinds – many years hence.
Harvest brings rewards, the sweetest is love.
Many gifts are reaped from the fields above.

Indian Summer

Cares are fewer, the family is grown.
Once again to find we're on our own.
Far away places seem to beckon and call,
And like our summer days, we explore it all.

Winter

The cold of winter, the ebb of our lives,
Our world is quiet, softly the snow lies.
Memories tucked away, bring on hidden smiles,
The gift of our seasons, to stay awhile.

UN rapporteur tour given the go-ahead

For the second time in as many years a United Nations special rapporteur will be visiting Canada and connecting with First Nations.

Stewart Phillip, president of the Union of British Columbia Indian Chiefs, said First Nations and Aboriginal organizations across the country need to take credit for the visit to Canada by Dr. James Anaya, special rapporteur on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples. A date for the visit has yet to be set.

"There is a critical need to convey to the international level the truth of the abuses of the human rights of Indigenous people in Canada," said Phillip.

Those abuses run so deep, he said, that the Canadian government, although openly welcoming Anaya's visit, made it difficult to schedule the UN rapporteur's tour.

Internationally, Phillip said, the Canadian government portrays a strong relationship with Indigenous peoples, but that is not the case.

"We are painfully aware of the public spin and the deliberately misleading statements that Canada makes to the international community with respect to its wonderful relationship with Indigenous people in this country," he said.

What happened in Attawapiskat First Nation in 2011 is not a single event, said Philip, but is a "mirror of hundreds of First Nations communities in similar dire straits."

Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence declared a state of emergency in 2011 due to poor winter housing conditions. The federal Harper government replaced Attawapiskat's chief and council with a third-party manager in response. Spence challenged the government's appointment and won her challenge in federal court.

Instead of the federal government addressing the growing needs of First Nations, the Harper government continues to cut programs and services, said Phillip. These are the actions Canada is not sharing with the rest of the world.

There are numerous issues that face Indigenous people in this country, he said.

Phillip points to $650-billion in energy and resource development projects, such as Enbridge's Northern Gateway and TransCanada's Keystone XL pipeline projects, which the federal government seems determined to push through without consideration to First Nations' treaty rights and traditional ways of life.

There is also the federal government's refusal to call a national inquiry into murdered and missing Aboriginal women and girls; the apprehension of First Nations children into the child welfare system, which has surpassed the number of children sent to residential schools; the gross underfunding of First Nations education; and, lack of domestic water systems and safe drinking water on reserves.

"None of this reality is conveyed to the international community," said Phillip. "The international community must hear the truth and Mr. Anaya's visit will provide us with the opportunity to speak the truth." And while Indigenous people suffer in Canada, he points out that Harper continues to slam other countries for abusing their Indigenous peoples. "It's blatant hypocrisy when he condemns other countries for their human rights records," said Phillip.

In May 2012, Olivier De chutter, the UN special rapporteur on the right to food, included First Nations in western Canada on his 11-day Canadian tour.

That there are two visits by UN rapporteurs back-to-back tells Phillip that other groups of people are also suffering at the hands of the Harper government.

"People are so frustrated that they're reaching to the international community because they have this intuitive sense that there is no human rights relief here in Canada with the Harper government," he said. "We're in a very desperate situation. Our communities are in a state of crisis."

By informing the international community of the state of living in Canada, Phillip hopes international pressure will be brought to bear and changes will come about.

"By bringing international awareness to the truth we will expose the Harper government for its very regressive position on human rights abuse, Indigenous rights, poverty and all of those issues," Phillip said. "We have to keep hammering away at the Harper government."

According to the Web site for the Office for the High Commissioner of Human Rights of the United Nations, "the Special Rapporteur's country reports evaluate the situations of Indigenous peoples in selected countries and offer recommendations to governments and other actors on how to address particular matters of concern within the framework of applicable international standards."
