NATION WITHOUT A COMMUNITY SENDS YOUTH TO COMPETE IN LITTLE NHL

Tuesday, March 12th, 2019 1:47 pm

"My expectations were to get these kids together and hopefully give them an experience that will last a lifetime." — Coach Craig Gideon

By Sam Laskaris
Windspeaker.com Contributor
MISSISSAUGA, Ont.

A bit of history is being made this week at the Little Native Hockey League tournament.

That's because a club from the Missanabie Cree First Nation is taking part for the first time in the 48-year history of the tourney, better known simply as the Little NHL.

A record 227 youth squads are participating in this year's tournament, being held at various rinks throughout Mississauga, a city located just west of Toronto.

The Little NHL, which began on Monday and continues until Thursday, has come a long way since its inception when 17 teams took part in the tournament's inaugural edition. It has become the largest Indigenous hockey tournament in Ontario.

As for the Missanabie Cree First Nation, it completed an agreement with the Ontario government for a land transfer of about 39 square kilometres back in 2010. But it was only this past summer that the First Nation received reserve status from the federal government.

Though the First Nation has an office in Sault Ste. Marie in northern Ontario, it does not have its own community yet. The First Nation has about 450 members spread out across the country.

Last year's announcement that Missanabie received reserve status got member Dominic Fletcher thinking about entering a team into the Little NHL. He approached Missanabie Chief Jason Gauthier this past November about the idea and was asked to come up with a budget to send a team to the 2019 tournament.

"It was almost to the tune of $15,000," said Fletcher of the costs to outfit a team and pay for their travel and hotel expenses.

After presenting his idea and estimated costs to Gauthier, Fletcher received a swift reply.

"Without really knowing what to expect, two days later (Gauthier) said we were approved for the budget," Fletcher said.

Things then had to move rather quickly. Tournament rosters for the Little NHL were due in January and Fletcher had to scramble to find some players.

Just three players who are Missanabie members were available to suit up for the novice squad.

Teams that compete at the Little NHL are allowed to pick up players from other First Nations, however, if their own community is not entering a squad in that division.

The tournament operates an online site for players that are seeking a team to play on. As a result, the Missanabie side was able to add eight players, including a backup goalie, to its roster.

Fletcher is sharing coaching duties of the Missanabie club with Craig Gideon.

"I didn't have expectations," Gideon said of how the squad would perform at this year's Little NHL. "My expectations were to get these kids together and hopefully give them an experience that will last a lifetime."

A total of 26 squads are participating in the novice recreational category at this year's tournament.

The Missanabie entry had a spectacular debut on Monday during its opening games.

In its morning outing, the Missanabie side overcame a 3-0 first-period deficit to edge Whitefish River First Nation 6-5 in overtime.

"When we got that win (Monday morning) coming back into that dressing room was pretty special," Gideon said. "The kids are seven and eight years old so they don't really get how special it was and the history they made."

Missanabie also ended up winning its second match on Monday, downing Wasauksing First Nation 7-3 in an afternoon outing.

The Missanabie coaches were unwilling to speculate how much more success they could have at this week's event, preferring to take it one game at a time.

Fletcher, however, is already deeming the tournament a success for Missanabie.

And he's already thinking ahead to future events.

"Now we have a certain budget of how much things will cost," he said. "We can start focusing on fundraising. This will bring everybody together."

Fletcher is hoping to have three Missanabie squads participate at the 2020 Little NHL, which will also be held in Mississauga.

And he is also keen to see Missanabie clubs enter even more divisions in the tournament in the years after that.

The Aamjiwnaang First Nation, located in southwestern Ontario, is the host community for this year's event even though it is being held in Mississauga.

Due to the large number of teams taking part these days the tournament has been held in Mississauga every year since 2013. That's because the city has enough arenas to accommodate the event and sufficient hotel rooms for participants and their families and supporters.

Aamjiwnaang Caring Connections Nurturing Program

For Women with Substance Misuse Issues
who are Pregnant or Parenting Children

This program's focus is to help mothers learn to balance their recovery from substance use with being the best parent she can be to her children. These roles are often viewed as being at odds with each other as a woman learns that she is supposed to be as selfish in her recovery as she was in her addiction while acknowledging that being a parent is one of the most selfless roles a woman fulfills in her life. This program teaches a woman to nurture herself in her recovery as she learns to nurture her child so the roles can be parallel to allow a woman to effectively manage both roles. The program aims to improve and strengthen the relationship between mother and child to improve outcomes for their newborns, infants and children while strengthening a mother's path to recovery.

12 week program to be held weekly on Wednesdays
Start Date TBA 10am – 12pm
Transportation will be provided
Lunch will be included

Location:
Aamjiwnaang FN

To Register please Contact:

Headline: The NWMO continues to implement Canada's plan for used nuclear fuel

By Greg Plain, Senior Engagement Advisor, Aboriginal Relations, NWMO.

This is the first of five columns, a continuation from our series published in 2017.

First, I'd like to thank the Aamjiwnaang leadership for inviting me to share more information with readers. Over the coming months, we'll talk about nuclear energy and Canada's plan for the safe, long-term management of used nuclear fuel. I'll describe how my organization – the Nuclear Waste Management Organization (NWMO) – is tasked with that responsibility. We are committed to interweaving Indigenous Knowledge into decision-making and taking an active role in reconciliation. As always, I welcome your comments and questions.

Many people are surprised to learn that nuclear energy is a major source of Ontario's power, accounting for about 60% of the province's electricity production. Nuclear power has been used to light our homes and businesses for decades, not only in Ontario, but also in Quebec and New Brunswick.

A by-product of this process is used nuclear fuel. There are currently about 2.8 million used nuclear fuel bundles in Canada. They are safely and securely stored at seven licenced facilities. But this is not a long-term solution. Used nuclear fuel must be safely contained and isolated from people and the environment, more or less indefinitely, as it will remain radioactive for many thousands of years.

That's where the NWMO comes in. We were formed in 2002 under an Act of Parliament (the Nuclear Fuel Waste Act) to develop and implement a safe and socially acceptable plan for the long-term care of Canada's used nuclear fuel. By law, Canada's nuclear energy corporations must fund the NWMO.

In my next column, I'll introduce you to details about Canada's plan. You can always get more information at www.nwmo.ca, or by contacting us at askthenwmo@nwmo.ca.

Aamjiwnaang First Nation Chippewa Tribe-UNE Newsletter Entry from NWMO
Headline: Selecting a site for Canada's deep geological repository

By Greg Plain, Senior Engagement Advisor, Aboriginal Relations, NWMO

This is the second of five columns, a continuation from our series published in 2017.

In the last installment, I talked about how nuclear energy is a significant source of electricity in Ontario, and that a by-product of this type of energy generation is used nuclear fuel. The Nuclear Waste Management Organization (NWMO), where I work, is responsible for implementing Canada's plan for the safe, long-term management of used nuclear fuel.

The plan – developed through a multi-year dialogue with Canadians – was selected by the Government of Canada in 2007. It involves placing the used nuclear fuel in a deep geological repository approximately 500 metres underground in a stable rock formation. Within the repository, the used nuclear fuel will be isolated and contained using engineered barriers. Deep geological repositories are internationally recognized as best practice for managing used fuel over the long term.

In Canada, the repository must be located in an area where communities, including First Nation and Métis communities, are willing hosts, working in partnership with the NWMO to implement it. Two-way dialogue within communities and inclusion of Indigenous perspectives are fundamental tenets of the NWMO's work.

There are currently five potential areas remaining in the site selection process: they are the Hornepayne, Huron-Kinloss, Ignace, Manitouwadge, and South Bruce areas. We expect to identify a single preferred site by about 2023.

In my next column, I'll outline the NWMO's history of Indigenous engagement. You can always get more information at www.nwmo.ca, or by contacting us at askthenwmo@nwmo.ca. Follow us on Facebook, Instagram and Twitter @nwmocanada.

Verse of the Day

Romans 12:18- "If it is possible, as far as it depends on you, live at peace with everyone."

It is hard to respect someone who always agrees with everyone. But it is also extremely hard to live in peace with a person who is aggressive and always disagrees with anything that others say. The ability to maintain strong convictions and yet keep the friendship and respect of those who differ from you becomes possible when you apply the basic principles of Christian love.

It is wise and admirable to have strong Christian convictions, but it is unwise to elevate those convictions to a form of pettiness and narrowmindedness. You must be willing to listen to the viewpoint of others. If your convictions are true and stable, you have nothing to fear from the opinions of others. The key to edifying relationships is not to be found in uniformity of thought.

To have strong and reasonable convictions and yet not be narrowminded, and to reveal love in your interpersonal relationships, shows that you are following in Jesus' Way.
