Help keep it healthy

Chronic wasting disease (CWD) is a fatal brain disease that affects white-tailed deer, moose, elk and caribou, and could severely impact Ontario's deer population if left unchecked.

So far, CWD has been found in neighbouring U.S. states, Manitoba and Québec, BUT NOT in Ontario wildlife.

We need your help to keep it that way!

What you can do

Ministry of Natural Resources will be testing for this disease in the area from October to December 2025.

Hunters can help protect both deer population and hunting by submitting heads of harvested deer for testing.

When submitting heads, hunters:

- are asked to provide the date and general location of harvest, otherwise the sample will not be tested
- must provide contact information so that we can reach out if the deer tests positive
- should drop off the head as soon as possible, preferably within 48 hours of harvest, or freeze the head until it can be dropped off
- should remove the antlers before submission
- may remove the skull cap as long as the majority of the brain, including all of the brain stem remains

Visit ontario.ca/CWD to learn more about our surveillance program, report sick deer and to get your test results.

Deer heads can be dropped off at the freezer at the Aamjiwnaang Lands Department.

Deer heads cannot be returned after testing.

Get your results at ontario.ca/CWD

WHAT'S IN IT FOR YOU?

Chronic Wasting Disease collectable crests — plus you're helping to keep Ontario's deer population healthy.
